I do not remember to have seen a handloom or a spinning wheel when in 1908 I described in in Hind Swaraj as the panacea for the growing pauperism of India. In that book I took it as understood that anything that helped India to get rid of the grinding poverty of her masses would in the same process also establish Swaraj. Even in 1915, when I returned to India from South Africa, I had not actually seen a spinning wheel. When the Satyagraha Ashram was founded at Sabarmati, we introduced a few handlooms there. But no sooner had we done this than we found ourselves up against a difficulty. All of us belonged either to the liberal professions or to business; not one of us was an artisan. We needed a weaving expert to teach us to weave before we could work the looms. One was at last procured from Palanpur, but he did not communicate to us the whole of his art. But Maganlal Gandhi was not to be easily baffled. Possessed of a natural talent for mechanics, he was fully able to master the art before long, and one after another several new weavers were trained up in the Ashram.

- (i) When did Gandhiji ji return from South Africa?

- (ii) In which book did Gandhi ji describe Khadi as the panacea for the growing poverty in India?
- (iii) Who was possessed of a natural talent for mechanics?
- (iv) When and where did Gandhi ji introduce a few handlooms in the beginning?
